I am pleased to recommend Wendy Levine for any position where writing, news judgment and creativity are necessary skills.

During her time at KCBS Wendy worked in several positions:

Web Writer: Responsible for creating and publishing web content for our 24/7 news website KCBS.com. This position requires the writer to continually update the website with new content as the news day develops. Using web-based editing tools, the web writer must work quickly and accurately to translate KCBS Radio content to the web.

Broadcast Writer: Responsible for re-writing all the radio scripts for live broadcast on KCBS Radio. This position requires the writer to quickly and accurately summarize and re-write wire copy, reporter provided content and news briefs for live broadcast. This is an intensely deadline driven position that requires the writer to work collaboratively with the news team under pressure.

Broadcast Producer: Responsible for actively producing live radio news content on KCBS Radio. This position requires the producer to seek out and chase news stories, create news content from interviews, and line-up live interview guests.

Wendy handled all these jobs with skill and grace. She would be a valuable team member for any organization.

Sincerely,

Todd Smoot
Associate Director

CONGRATULATIONS!

CONGRATULATIONS!

CONGRATULATIONS!

Your suggestion for Massage Therapy as an added benefit for our employees has been well received by all, especially the corporate office. Everyone is excited and looking forward to the start of the program. The good news of this added benefit for employees has spread to both of our east coast offices and is now being looked into for them.

Thank you for taking the time to suggest this service as a benefit for our employees. Your efforts, above and beyond the call of duty are appreciated.

FROM: MARK HERDER

DATE: SEPTEMBER 3, 1993

Today, because of an audio problem, we were forced into a tight turnaround with an episode of UNSOLVED MYSTERIES. Wendy Levine cheerfully accepted the assignment, having to quit in the middle of her work, delay her own lunch, and pound out a couple hundred captions to finish UNSOLVED MYSTERIES.

Her positive attitude made the situation much nicer, and her captioning ability got the show out on time.

Dear Mark:

Thanks so much for responding to our news release about Community Foundation Week. I was very pleased to be contacted by Wendy Levine for an interview. She asked many good questions and her reports conveyed important information about philanthropy.

We hope you will continue to look to the DCF as a source of information about philanthropy in Delaware – now, when year-end giving is being promoted by all organizations, or any time during the year. Please call if we can be of help to you, or visit our web site at www.delclf.org.

The Delaware Community Foundation is one of about 600 community foundations nationwide. For further information about foundations, please check the Council on Foundations web site at www.cof.org.

My best wishes for a happy Thanksgiving.

Sincerely,

Michele Sands
Communications Associate

To Whom It May Concern:

Let this be a strong letter of recommendation on behalf of Wendy Levine, who has worked for us in both fulltime and parttime capacities.

Wendy displays a strong command of current events. She's one of the stronger writers we've seen in recent years. She can cover "hard" news. She can give a feature story that original, Wendy "twist".

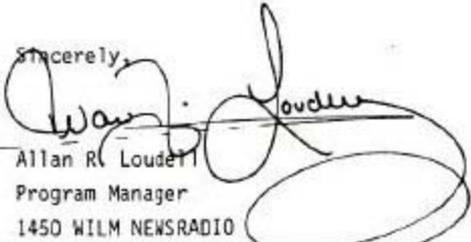

Wendy can also host a live telephone-talk show, with or without guests. She offers a contrarian, iconoclastic perspective. People who disagree with her still seem to enjoy calling.

At a time when radio cries for compelling content -- and listeners may follow the content elsewhere -- Wendy may very well distinguish your radio station from its competitors.

She's not a silent type. She'll tell you what she thinks. No hidden agenda.

The only tough thing about writing this letter: We'd just as soon keep her here!

Sincerely,

Allan R. Loudell
